EJL Wireless Research Reports Global Wireless Infrastructure Revenues Declined 11.5% YoY in Q4 2009 to USD $12.8 Billion

Projected 2010 Industry Outlook to be +/-5% in USD

Salem, NH, May 3, 2010: The global wireless BTS infrastructure market revenues decreased by 11.5% for the fourth quarter of 2009 to USD $12.8 billion compared with the fourth quarter of 2008, according to the latest report from EJL Wireless Research titled "Global Wireless OEM Financial Results Q4 2009."

"Wireless revenues showed a sequential increase which is not surprising given the seasonally strong Q4. Wireless revenues for 2009 were USD $46 billion, down 17% and exactly within the range of -15 to -20% that we had forecasted on a USD basis," says founder and President, Earl Lum. The report provides a unique perspective on the global wireless infrastructure revenues for major wireless OEMs including Alcatel-Lucent, Ericsson, Motorola, Nokia Siemens Networks, Nortel Networks, and ZTE.

"ZTE was the only vendor in the analysis who reported an increase in wireless revenues for 2009. Our current view for 2010 revenues is for the market to be -5% to +5% compared with 2009 on a USD basis," says Lum..

The report is currently available for purchase and information can be downloaded at www.ejlwireless.com.
